PRESS OF
MARSHALL & BRUCE CO.,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

PREFACE.

Huntsville, Ala., February, 1896.

In presenting this edition of a City Directory of Huntsville to the public we feel that the book "per se" needs no preface or introduction and were it not for the fact that it affords us an opportunity of thanking "those" who by their patronage enabled us to publish this volume and to whom also are due the thanks of the public and citizens generally, we should omit it.

Long experience in the business having taught us that those who are hypercritical and prone to carp at a work of this kind if they discover an error are those who contribute "nothing" towards its publication, we leave the book to speak for itself, satisfied that when in the hands of the subscribers they will be as generous in dealing with any shortcomings they may discover as they were liberal in their support, bearing in mind the facts that the first edition of a work of this kind is always the most difficult, and further that a perfectly correct Directory is a "moral impossibility."

The population of Huntsville proper is 11,400, by actual count, and is not an estimate.

In conclusion we think that in justice to our patrons, we should here mention that those whose names appear in black letters are the progressive and liberal men and women who helped us to publish this book. Respectfully,

HUNTSVILLE DIRECTORY CO.
