

LIPSCOMB CEMETERY, 61 – 2

Summary Report

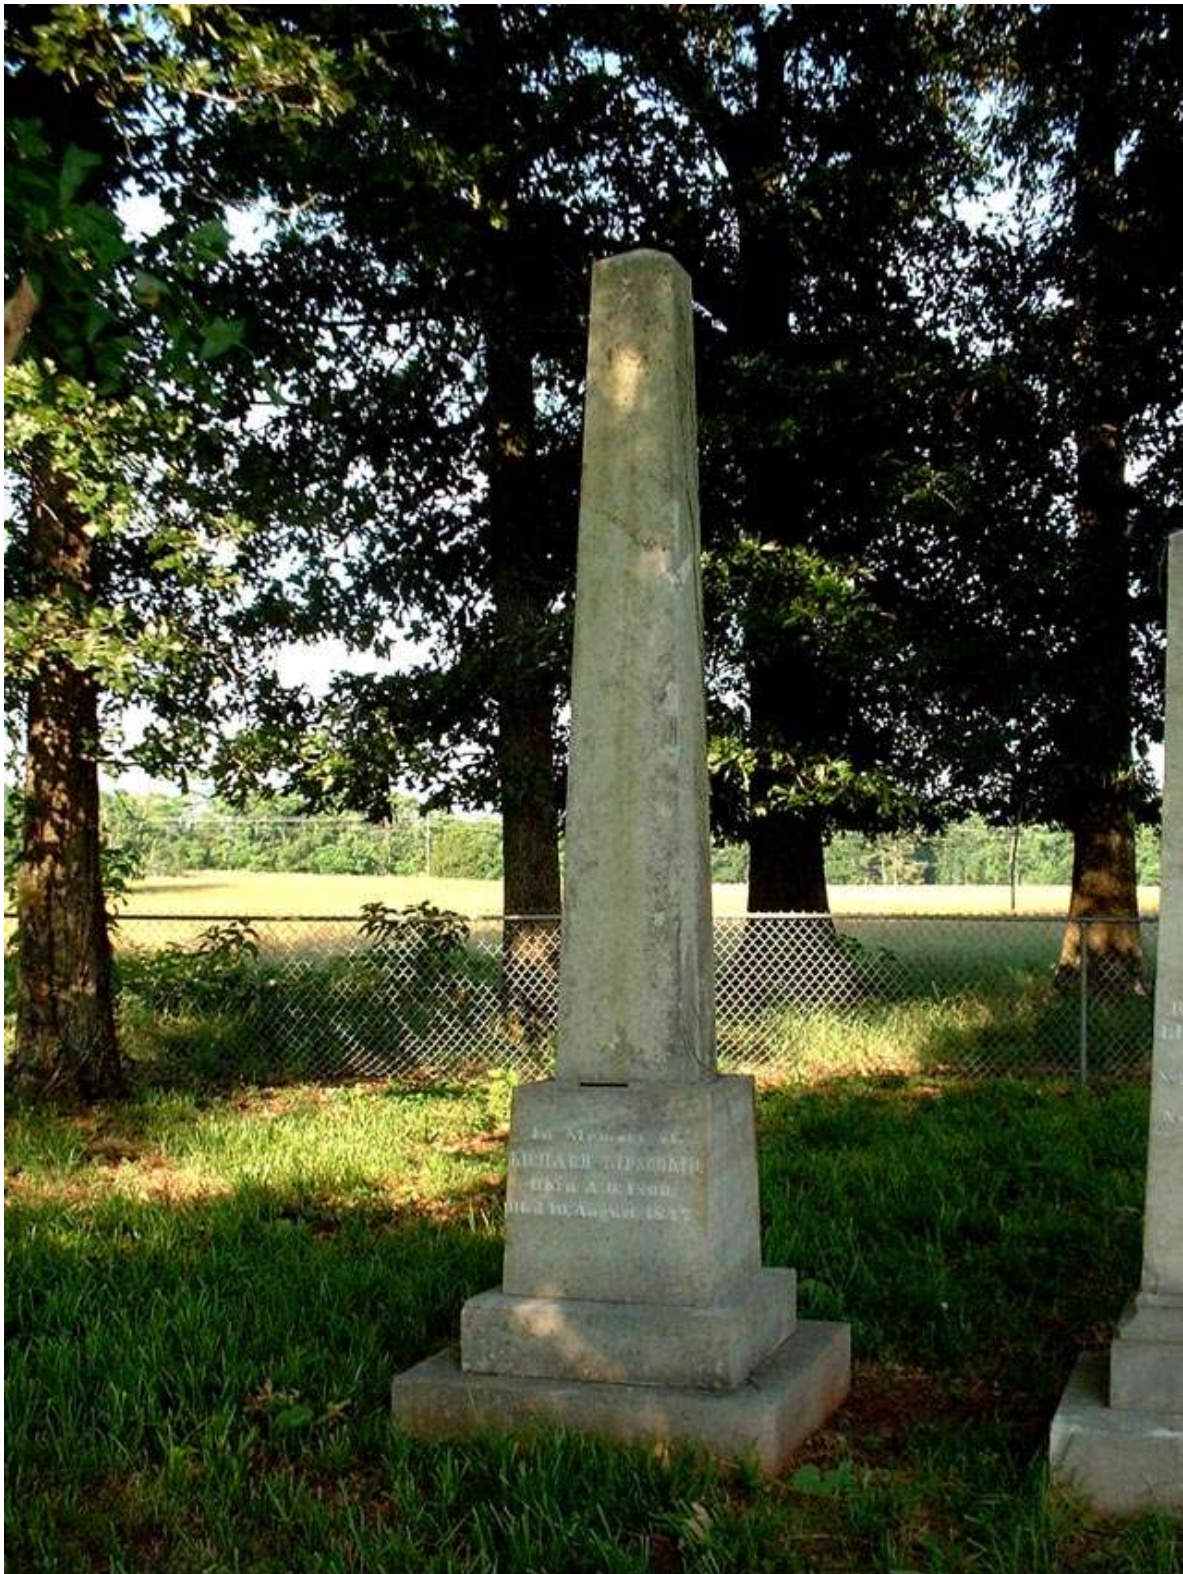

Redstone Arsenal: Lipscomb Cemetery, June, 2002.

This cemetery is located in a pasture, about 100 yards north of Hale Road and about 200 yards west of Locust Road in the northwest portion of the arsenal. There is evidence of about 20 graves, but the enclosed area could hold twice that many. Only the four obelisks remain, along with one field stone that may well be a grave marker in the northwest corner of the cemetery.

The location of the cemetery is in the SW/4 of Section 24, Township 4 South, Range 2 West.

These impressive obelisks appear new and are probably a recent addition. Of course, they just be recently cleaned and restored, since they are broken.

This obelisk is for Richard M. Lipscomb, thought to have been the patriarch of the arsenal area Lipscomb families. There is no monument here for his wife Sarah, but several of his children are commemorated by the other obelisks in the cemetery. It would be logical for Sarah to have been buried here, but there are also, but she actually moved off of the arsenal area lands and into the town of Madison Station (now simply “Madison”, without the original “Station” appendage) by 1860. Sarah lived beside her son John T. Lipscomb in Madison Station, and he is buried in Madison’s old City Cemetery, so she may be buried there near him. However, there is no marker in the Madison City Cemetery for Sarah, so she could be in either cemetery, or even in another, somewhere else.

Harriet N. Lipscomb appeared in only one census record -- 1850 Madison County, AL. She was listed as 6 years old, born in AL, on the census sheet dated November 9, 1850. Head of the Lipscomb household is given at that time as Sarah, age 47, born in VA. Sarah was the wife of Richard Lipscomb (see tombstone photo) and mother of Robert, who is given as age 24 on the census, born in VA. Other children in the home were: Martha A. R. 23 (see tombstone photo), Manerva J. 21, and John T. 20 -- all listed as born in VA. Children of the Lipscomb household listed as born in AL were: Mary E. 18, Elizabeth V. 16, Theophilus J. 12, Margaret E. 9, Sarah R. 8, and Harriet N. 6.

The close death dates for Martha and Robert may indicate an epidemic of some type affected the family, but usually epidemics were in the summers.

The fieldstone below suggests that perhaps the cemetery was also used to bury some of the slaves owned by the family, since there are many unmarked graves in evidence here.

Redstone Arsenal: Lipscomb Cemetery, June, 2002.

This fieldstone is located near the northwest corner of the cemetery, at the west end of a rectangular depression in the earth, about 4 to 6 inches deep. It is obviously an adult-sized grave.

Considering the possibility of slaves being buried in the Lipscomb family cemetery, the history of the family in the county was examined. Below is the 1840 census record for a Thomas Lipscomb. The names of his neighbors in the census indicate that he lived in the southeastern part of what became the arsenal, near Hughey Smith and Hughey's son-in-law Pleasant Austin and the Lacy family. Yet, the slave portion of census sheet showed that Thomas Lipscomb had no slaves in 1840.

The “slave owner” listed above was “Richard Lipscomb, Estate”, since Richard had died before 1850. From the April 1858 court papers, it is known that his son John T. Lipscomb was the Administrator of the estate. John was 28 years old in 1858, and he was an educated man, with the occupation of educator in the nearby town of Madison.

The 1860 Madison County census shown below had two Lipscomb family groups. One was a Doctor Decalb (DeKalb) Lipscomb, who lived in the Hayes Store (now the community of Deposit, near Bell Factory) area. He had slaves, as shown in the census records. Sarah Lipscomb and her children formed the other group, living in the town of Madison, as known by the neighbors listed beside them in the census data. Sarah and 4 of her children were still slave owners in the 1860 record. However, they held 34 slaves in the 1850 census, but in 1860 they had only 28. It may be that some of the slaves died in whatever epidemic swept the area in 1852 and killed Robert and Martha Lipscomb at a young age – both died in their 20s.

There is no known relationship between Dr. Decalb Lipscomb and Sarah's husband Richard Lipscomb. The doctor's age indicates that he could have been a son of Sarah and Richard, but no records to support that have been found. Furthermore, he was of an age that put him as being born in the same year as Martha A. R. Lipscomb. It is possible that he and Martha were twins, but she was listed as being born in Alabama, whereas Decalb was listed as being born in Tennessee. The Tennessee connection and the fact that he lived in the northeastern part of Madison County suggests that Decalb was part of a Lipscomb family that was known to live in southern Franklin County, TN, with some branches who settled in Jackson County, Alabama.

Since there is a possibility that Lipscomb family slaves were buried with the plantation owners in the family cemetery, the 1880 census records for the area of the arsenal were checked for black Lipscomb families. It is assumed that some of them would have kept the surname, especially if the Lipscombs regarded their slaves as “family members” who could be buried in the cemetery with them. The 1880 listing below highlights the black Lipscomb families who lived on pre-arsenal land, as indicated by the neighboring presence of other families known to be living in that area at that time.

In the above 1880 listing, it was noted that Anthony Lipscomb had been born in Virginia. Since he was 60 years old in 1880, he would have been born in 1820, when the Lipscomb family still lived in that state. According to the ages and birthplaces recorded in 1850 for the white Lipscomb children, the family moved here around the 1830s. Land records show that Richard got land in 1833 (Limestone Co., AL) and 1835 (Madison Co., AL):

The land records for the Lipscombs further show that Richard bought the land where the cemetery is located (Section 24, Township 4, Range 2 West) in 1846. He also bought land in the section that contains Green Grove Cemetery (61-1) from Benjamin Bledsoe in 1838 and 1840. Green Grove Cemetery is in the northwestern corner of the arsenal, west of the northern end of Anderson Road. Benjamin Bledsoe was one of the 19 men who purchased lands on the first day of legal sale (2 Feb. 1818) around what eventually became the town of Madison Station / Madison. The land sales by the Lipscomb families show that John T. Lipscomb, as administrator of Richard's estate, sold the land containing the cemetery to George Ward and others in 1870. As mentioned before, John himself is buried in the Madison City Cemetery (see tombstone photo and caption below). It may well be that his mother is buried there near him, as is his wife. While his mother Sarah Lipscomb has no tombstone in the City Cemetery, that is not unusual, since many graves there have no tombstones today. In the "hard times" in the South after the Civil War, few people had money to spend on tombstones, even if they had previously had great wealth. Such may have been the case with the Lipscomb family, of whom only John has left his mark in accomplishments in public education in the town of Madison.

Westmoreland - Lipscomb - Cartwright area beside Mill Rd.

John T. Lipscomb was born in Virginia, the son of Richard Lipscomb, who is buried on Redstone Arsenal in the Lipscomb Cemetery, SW/4, S24-T4S-R2W. Apparently, the family moved from Virginia to Madison County, AL, in 1830-1, from birthplaces and ages of the children.

Orra C. Lipscomb was Oregon ("Orrie") Cartwright, dau. of Hezekiah Bradley Cartwright and his 2nd wife, Martha Vaughan Bailey. Hezekiah married the widow Bailey after his first wife (Martha Gray) died in 1850 of typhoid fever. Martha A. V. B. Cartwright is buried nearby. Hezekiah is buried in the Cartwright Cemetery on Palmer Road, where his parents John & Mary Cartwright owned land and are believed to be buried.
