

Free People of Color in Madison County, Alabama

By Nancy Rohr

Appendix II

Colored Census for the Year 1865
National Archives, M-1900-Roll 19

Records of the Field Offices for the State of Alabama, Bureau of Refugees, Freedmen, and Abandoned Lands, 1865-1872

This census of black freedmen (women and children) was taken in Huntsville, Alabama in 1865. Information was gathered that included:

- Name
- Age
- Sex
- Street lived on currently
- Former owner
- Former occupation
- County
- State
- Present employment
- Remarks

For some reason, after 279 names had been obtained, a second enumerator continued the count. Although the same form was used, age and sex were eliminated, and in those two columns a mark was made to establish if the interviewee was over or less than 13 years of age.

For this Huntsville accounting, it is clear two different men worked on the census. Although the handwriting of the first man was poor and blotches were made on the paper, he appeared to perform his task well and added insightful remarks. He may have been a local man, because he noted the initials or first name of former owners. Perhaps he was going too slowly while he wrote in everything. His total was 279 freedmen.

To keep the useful information of age and sex, this printout is arranged in two sections: pages 3 – 11 and pages 12 – 72 (shaded).

The second enumerator appeared to be inattentive, sloppy, and lazy – at the least inattentive or uncaring. One almost has the feeling he never really spoke to those he was counting. He certainly did not take the time to ask where they had been born or lived previously, as had the first man.

Furthermore, it might be suggested, he was a northerner and not really quite aware of southern slave life. For many children he listed their former occupation as in school. Before the Civil War it was against the law to teach slaves to read and write, and it is highly unlikely they attended school of any kind. He listed the former occupation of many of the men as farmers. That also is improbable; they would have been field hands if they worked on a farm.

It would have been useful if he had included at the least a first initial to the former owner's surname. For instance one does not know if the former slave was owned by which of the three Fearn brothers or which of three sons of Governor Clay. He does use titles Gov., Dr. Mrs., Gen.l, and the Est. of with some names.

Although the first man was not instructed to record those too ill to work, the second recorder noted 13 sick people. In a population of 2169 this seems questionable.

Many of the former slave owner's names were not common to Madison County and may simply reflect the relocation of vast numbers of people and the unsettled times following the War. Certainly many slaves came for work and protection into the city.

The first enumerator listed 279 names.

The second enumerator listed his totals:

Over 13 years of age – 1254

Under 13 years of age – 902

Sick – 13

Total – 2169

The second census total number is flawed because the sick were included twice in the total count. The larger census also did not include the 279 names of the first enumerator into the full account.

Thus the combined first (279) and second enumeration (2162), less the 13 sick that were counted twice, gave a number for former slaves at that time within the city. This left the Colored Census of Madison County, Alabama, 1865 total of 2328 freedman citizens of Huntsville.
